

WARNS OF CHAOTIC CONDITIONS WHICH WILL FOLLOW CONTINUATION OF THE POLICIES OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Former Senator Owlett is Speaker at Meeting of Loyal Republican Club at Buckingham—Speaker Says New Deal is 'Hydra-Headed Menace to Private Enterprise'

BUCKINGHAM, Apr. 11.—G. Mason Owlett, Republican National Committee member for Pennsylvania, told the Loyal Republican Club of Bucks County here last night that unless the American people unite to change the Administration in Washington the paternal and socialistic policies of the New Deal will bring a chaotic period of national disintegration upon the land.

Labeling the New Deal a "hydra-headed menace to private enterprise," Mr. Owlett said that bureaucratic Washington has encouraged great numbers of Americans to believe that it is possible to grow richer by working less and producing less.

"In its quest for extraordinary powers, the New Deal has fostered the idea that there exists somewhere a great fund of wealth which has only to be divided more equitably in order to make everybody prosperous," he said.

"There is no magic source of wealth beyond that which we create through our own efforts. Free enterprise guarantees opportunity and security to anyone who really wants it. It gives us the right to live our own lives, run our own jobs and direct our own industries, free from the chafing bonds of regimentation."

"The history of the Roosevelt administration shows that it has

Two-Part Easter Cantata Presented at Eddington

EDDINGTON, Apr. 11.—A two-part cantata, entitled "Eternal Life," was presented by the choir of Eddington Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning.

The numbers included: The Lord Reigneth, choir; Man of Sorrow, also solo by Mrs. Otto Grupp, Jr., and choir; Gethsemane, choir; Calvary, Mrs. Philip Mack and choir; A Whisper of Hope, duet, soprano, Mrs. Philip Mack, alto, Mrs. Otto Grupp, Jr.; Dawns the New Day, choir.

Hail to the King, soprano solo, Mrs. Arthur Baas, and choir; The King Comes Forth, choir; The Redeemer Triumphant, soprano solo, Mrs. Philip Mack; The King of Glory, choir; The Resurrection and the Life, choir.

The junior congregation under the leadership of Mrs. William Vogel rendered a number "Easter Day Is Here."

On Easter, as on every Sunday, the members of the church honor roll were remembered in silent prayer. Several servicemen were present at the Easter service.

This week Mrs. Gertrude Kirk began her 19th year as the church organist.

SCHEDULE CONCERTS

The Ernest Gamble Concert Party will appear at the Eddington Presbyterian Church the evening of April 18th. Prospect Park High School will present these artists in "Musical Portraits" on May 12th.

Kaiser Offers To Return The Brewster Stock

The Henry J. Kaiser management of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation yesterday offered to return control of the company to the Miranda brothers and James Work, its former president.

Under the offer, presumably made with Navy sanction, 50,000 shares of stock would be returned to the Mirandas—Alfred J. and Ignacio—and their associate, William F. Zelcer, and 90,000 shares would go back to Work.

The stock was placed in a voting trust headed by Kaiser when the Navy took over the company in 1942. It is about 24 percent of the outstanding stock, enough to assure voting control.

Kaiser, who has announced he will soon abandon his connection with Brewster, would only say: "The Navy is disposed to break the trust now, inasmuch as I am stepping out of Brewster as soon as it can be done."

Under the current agreement with the Navy the voting trust would expire next November and control of the company automatically would revert to the Mirandas and Work.

Spokesmen for the Mirandas said it was doubtful whether they would accept the Navy offer at this time, due to the uncertain financial condition of the company.

There has been no financial statement since the Navy took over the company. The Navy is holding up millions of dollars due under present contracts and is demanding renegotiation on several points.

The Miranda spokesmen said if they agreed to renew control now, they would shoulder all of the company's present difficulties. If they wait until the agreement expires they will be in a position to take legal action in case they believe mismanagement has taken place, the spokesmen said.

The Mirandas are reputed to have made millions through their operations at Brewster's. Stockholders sued them for $3,600,000 and the suit was settled out of court in 1942.

Fleetwings Choral Club To Give Concert in May

Fleetwings Choral Club of 50 mixed voices will make its debut at the Grand Theatre on the evening of May 24th.

This is the first adult mixed chorus Bristol has had, chorus officials state. More than half the members live in Bristol.

Director Ernest Gamble says that for enthusiasm his singers are unsurpassed.

BUCKS COUNTIANS AID IN CAMPAIGN TO RAISE FUNDS FOR THE SALVATION ARMY; SALVATIONISTS ACTIVE THROUGHOUT WORLD

A large number of Bucks Countians are aiding in the annual drive for funds for the Salvation Army, the 1944 campaign now being under way.

The Bucks County committee is inclusive of:

Wallace G. Murfit, chairman, Newtown; H. G. Fromm, co-chairman, Bristol; William M. Hill, Jr., co-chairman, Sellersville; J. Carroll Molloy, Jr., co-chairman, Doylestown; Mrs. John P. Gaine, secretary, Newtown. Endorsing committee—Webster S. Arcey, Doylestown; Hon. Calvin S. Boyer, Doylestown; Mrs. Marian Davis, Richboro; Dr. E. C. Deubler, Newtown; Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown; Mrs. Dorothy E. Fechtenberg, Bristol RFD; Mrs. John F. Folinshee, New Hope; J. V. Hare, Trevesse; William M. Hill, Jr., Sellersville; Mrs. Irvin M. James, Doylestown; Hon. Hiram M. Keller, Doylestown; Mrs. Frank Lehman, Bristol; Charles M. Meredith, Jr., Quakertown; William H. Molloy, Ivyland; William F. Morlok, Jr., Newtown; Mrs. Norman J. Mortimer, Buckmanville; Henry C. Parry, Langhorne; Miss Marion E. Peck, Halmerville; Mrs. Ada B. Reeder, Newtown; C. Wilson Roberts, Southampton; Thomas Ross, Doylestown; Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., Bristol; John W. Sprengel, Perkasie; George A. Walton, George School.

Women's Committee. Mrs. Richard S. Landis, Morrisville, president of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs; the Presidents of the Junior Women's Clubs. Mrs. Raymond H. Acuff, Langhorne; Miss Helene Bauer, Southampton; Mrs. Alice Cadwallader, Warrington; Mrs. Clay Large, New Hope; Mrs. Thomas Nuneviller, Buckingham; Mrs. William Shalh, Sr., Yardley; Mrs. William N. Tanner, Chalfont; Mrs. Donald Weisel, Doylestown; Mrs. Calvin White, Newtown; Mrs. Robert F. Wright, Bristol.

Statistics from the far flung corners of the world on The Salvation Army activities have just been received by Brigadier Samuel Hepburn, divisional commander of the Salvation Army in this area. Contributions from Philadelphia and the surrounding communities have helped make this work possible, since approximately $150,000 from the Maintenance Fund Campaign of 1943 went towards overseas war work in various parts of the globe.

The report reveals that there is hardly a country where Salvationists are not active, both in war work and in relief for those in stricken areas.

In New Guinea there are 13 Red Shield units, one of which was within 500 yards of a Jap landing field until it fell into American hands. In Iraq there are two Red Shield units and two clubs. In Iceland, according to Major General Homer, of the United States Army, "The only things of a recreational nature to be found are those provided by the Salvation Army. They were there right from the start and their work is positively superb."

In Yugoslavia, where Partisan forces are fighting the Nazi conquerors and awaiting the arrival of Allied relief, The Salvation Army is already on the scene. Red Shield mobile units are operating and feeding refugees in Belgrade.

Salvationists are working in all provinces of India. Burmese, Telugu and Tamil populations are being sheltered and fed. Service men are housed and entertained at hostels in Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Colombo and other cities.

When first taken to the municipal building, Gilardi was promptly placed in the police car and returned to the Bristol House where he had a room. The proprietor, it is stated, asked the officer to take Gilardi back to the police station, and this request was followed. Gilardi was placed in a cell. During the usual check-ups at six and at seven o'clock he was alright, state police. When an officer went to the cell at 7:55 o'clock, it was discovered that Gilardi was apparently dead.

A physician was summoned and pronounced the man dead, and Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Rigby, Cornwells Heights, was called in the case. Cause of death was given as a heart attack.

CARDS ON WEDNESDAY

CORNWELLS MANOR, Apr. 11.—The card party to be given by Cornwells Manor Civic Club, on Wednesday evening, in the Union Fire Co. station, is expected to be a great success. Various prizes have been donated and others promised.

This affair is to build the club's treasury in order to supply the service men with gifts.

NUMEROUS PARTICIPANTS Are in Easter Program

NEWPORTVILLE, Apr. 11.—The Easter program of the Sunday School of Newportville Community—Presbyterian was held Sunday morning. The platform was decked with potted plants. The program included: Easter song, primary department; prayer, Julius E. Scheldt; Scripture Easter story, Miss M. Wickwire, with the primary children enacting the story as the Scripture reading progressed. The children taking part are Harry Robinson and Walter Bowker, as angels; Jean Snock, Alice Brambley, Margaret Potts as the women at the tomb; Jack Lowrie as Peter.

Others taking part in the program: vocal quartette, the Misses Jane Wimmersberger, Janice De-wees, Jacqueline Lowrie and Anna White; vocal solo, Miss Naomi Lowrie; vocal quartette, the Misses Elva Brambley and Frances Matkowski; and C. B. Collins and J. E. Scheidel; poem by Mrs. John Lowrie, "If I Forget."

C. Burnley White then spoke to the adults, then gave an illustrated talk to the children, using flowers and a live white rabbit to explain his talk on "Resurrection." Raymond Perpete closed the program with prayer.

In the evening the choir under the direction of C. Bentley Collins gave a creditable program at the special Easter song service.

CLAIMS ETO MISSIONS WORSE THAN PACIFIC

Tech. Sgt. Wigginton Says
Opposition Heavier
In That Area

SAW MUCH SERVICE

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England, Apr. 11.—T/Sgt. George J. Wigginton, 23, radio operator-gunner of the Eighth AAF "Flying Fortress" "Chief Childeau" is of the opinion that the missions in the European theater of operations are definitely rougher than those in the Pacific area. Sgt. Wigginton, who won the Silver Star for gallantry in the Pacific, has earned the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Distinguished Flying Cross in this theater.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wigginton, of 508 Radcliffe street, Bristol, Pa., he is a graduate of the Greensburg, Pa., high school. The veteran gunner enlisted in the army on July 9, 1940.

He was shipped to Honolulu via the Panama Canal and arrived there on Sept. 26, 1940. He was graduated from the Wheeler Field, T. H. radio school. On May 1, 1941, he was assigned to a combat crew of a B-18 (twin engine bomber), and three months later transferred to a Flying Fortress.

Sgt. Wigginton was at Pearl Harbor when it was attacked. "I was in bed sleeping when it started," he said. "My buddy and I got up and taxied our Fort to safety with two flat tires. All the ships in our squadron were saved."

Members of his crew were awarded the Silver Star for sinking the Jap heavy cruiser "Mogami" during the Midway battle. "I remember during the Midway battle I lived on beans, bread, and beer for 13 days. We didn't have a drop of water. Over here, though, we went on 'chow' is the best I've seen anywhere, and living conditions, too. It's the best theater, but the roughest, believe me. We have more training here than in the Pacific, but we've a tougher job to do over here," he added.

With 38 missions to his credit in the Pacific, and almost as many over here, Sgt. Wigginton gives his reasons why the flying here is tougher. "Here it's much colder, we fly at much higher altitudes, and there is more fighter opposition to say nothing of flak. In all my missions in the Pacific I only went through one good sized flak barrage."

"The day we blasted the ball-

Recover Truck Stolen In Phila.; Contents Gone

Sixty thousand cigars have "gone up in smoke" as far as the owner is concerned, and soon they will actually go up in smoke if the thief or thieves are able to dispose of their stock to "customers."

A truck, loaded with the 60,000 cigars, was stolen in Philadelphia early Saturday morning, and according to police the empty truck, owned by the Katham Corp., Philadelphia, was found abandoned along Mill Creek Road, near Laurel Bend, yesterday.

The truck, as far as police can learn, had been at the designated spot in Bristol Township since Saturday morning, and yesterday officers at South Langhorne barracks of Penna. State Police were notified by Officer Bartle of Bristol Police, Cpl. Evans and Officer Forestin investigated, and the vehicle was turned over to the owner.

The truck was not damaged. Officers "dusted" it for fingerprints in an effort to trace the thieves.

Estimating value of the cigars at five cents apiece, police state the goods stolen are valued at $3,000.

Pfc. Howard R. Buckner
Given Oak Leaf Cluster

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 11.—An Oak Leaf Cluster has been awarded to PFC Howard R. Buckner, Jr., of Cottage street, it is announced. The parents of the 21-year-old soldier, Mr. and Mrs. H. Roy Buckner, have received a message to this effect from their son in Italy.

Pvt. Buckner was in a hospital when the letter was written on March 22, but he is getting along nicely and was not wounded badly. This is the second award he has received in action, and the second decoration, the former being the Purple Heart.

Buckner left the United States last June, and since that time has seen battle action in several countries, including Africa and Sicily. He graduated from Doylestown high school in 1942. A brother, Pvt. Harry Buckner, is with the Engineers and has just arrived in England according to a cablegram received by his parents last week.

Lower Bucks Marine Ass'n Will Meet Here

Lower Bucks County Marine Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at Goodwill Hose Company station, Swain street, Bristol, Thursday evening.

Guest speakers will be present and a demonstration will be given by members of the Bureau of Fire, Philadelphia. Many volunteer groups displaying interest in the rescue work of the Marine Association have been invited to attend. Outdoor demonstrations and drills are planned for the summer months to co-ordinate rescue work as an additional protection and service to citizens of this area.

DINNER MEETING WITH MUCH POPULARITY HERE

"I Am An American Day"
Observance is Generally
Endorsed

COUNCIL APPROVES IT

Three endorsements of the "I Am An American Day" dinner on May 21st have been received by Anthony Russo, chairman of the general committee. The affair, sponsored by St. Ann's Athletic Association, and which is to be held in the high school auditorium, is meeting with great popularity. Reservations are going rapidly and the committee urges those planning to attend to make their reservations at once as the number of tickets to be sold is limited.

Borough council last night gave the observance of "I Am An American Day" its hearty approval and accepted invitations to be among the honored guests. Council will attend in a body and occupy seats together.

Other honored guests are to be the parents, and in cases of marriage the wives, of those who have died in the present global conflict, the parents and wives of those reported missing in action, and those who have been wounded and honorably discharged.

The Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, writes as follows:

Bristol, Pa., April 6th, 1944.
Mr. Anthony Russo,
General Chairman,
St. Ann's Athletic Assn.,
Bristol, Pa.

Dear Sir:—
The Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, Bristol, Pa., wishes to commend you, your committee and the St. Ann's Athletic Assn., for your worthy efforts in sponsoring an "I Am An American Day" and arranging a program and dinner honoring the parents and

South Langhorne Man Has 7 Sons in Service

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Apr. 11.—With two more sons of Fred Hewins, Sr., entering the armed services last week, the total number of Hewins boys in the service is now seven.

The latest to leave are Jack, aged 27, who is training with the Marine Corps at Parris Island, S. C., and Christopher Hewins, 18, who is trained for army duty.

Other boys in the service are Tech. Sgt. Fred Hewins, Jr., 33, stationed somewhere in England; Pvt. Ernest Hewins, 25, Ft. Dix, N. J.; Pvt. Robert Hewins, 23, C/o Postmaster, New York; Pvt. Edward Hewins, 22, Camp Shelby, Miss.; and Pvt. Charles Hewins, 21, in the Pacific area.

Two other sons, William and James, reside at home with their father. The mother of the young men is deceased.

3rd Attack on Continent Within 30 Hours

London—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, paying his first visit to the medium bomber stations of the Ninth U. S. Air Force today, saw Marauders take off for their third attack on continental targets within 30 hours. The American planes, escorted by fighters, blasted the enemy-held railroad center of Charleroi, some 30 miles south of Brussels, as German propagandists indicated Luftwaffe production centers as far as the Baltic coast were also being targeted.

The mighty American offensive against Germany appeared bringing up to a new level of intensity the "invasion-softening" process. It came but hours after the RAF's heaviest sweep against French and Belgian railroad targets.

Allied Fighters Destroy Four Small Vessels

Naples—Allied fighters today were credited with the destruction of four small vessels off the coast of Yugoslavia yesterday during sweeps that saw Nazi-utilized rail lines and communication arteries hit heavily. During the course of the 90-sortie day, medium bombers struck at objectives above Rome while fighter bombers blasted installations in the Florence area. RAF planes bombed the ports of Piombino and San Stefano on the west coast last night in a follow-up raid in daylight by American craft.

UNSIGHTLY DUMPS GET ATTENTION OF BOROUGH COUNCIL

Two "Eye Sores" in Fourth
Ward Are To Be Cleaned Up

2 COMPLAINTS REC'D

One Declared To Be A Fire
Menace To Fleetwings
Plant No. 3

Two unsightly spots in the fourth ward which are being used as dumping grounds by private individuals came in for consideration of borough council, last night.

Council took emphatic action and placed the matter in the hands of the street and highway committee and the borough police committee. It was the instruction of council to these two committees that the owners of the property be notified at once to abate the nuisance and that the police committee see that the action is enforced.

Two communications were read to Council in which complaints were voiced about the two objectionable spots. One dump is located along Beaver street, opposite Plant No. 3 of Fleetwings and the other dump is located on Fourth avenue near Green street. Both spots are adjacent to a new housing development within the borough.

The complaints filed with council last night came from Fleetwings and Mrs. Harold D. Johnson. Mrs. Johnson in her complaint stated that she planned to rent a house on Fourth avenue but first wanted to know if the dump would be eliminated and if the borough planned to improve the street. Fleetwings in their complaint stated that the dump opposite their Plant No. 3 was unsightly and a fire hazard as paper blew from it onto their property.

Upon the recommendation of the Health and Sanitation Committee of Council the contract for the collection of garbage was awarded to John Loevever, the present collector, for the sum of $729 which is $129 less than the cost of the present contract. Only two bids were received. Mr. Myers informed council the other bid being from Edward W. Patton, Bensalem Township, for $1695.

Council was called to order by Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., owing to the absence of Dr. J. Fred Wagner. William H. H. Fine was chosen to act as president pro tem.

Police committee reported that the officers made four arrests during the month of March and that the following disposition of the cases had been made: Discharged, one; fined, one; held for court, one; turned over to U. S. Military Police, one. One door was found unlocked, 16 incandescent lights were reported out; 12 were fined for "all-night" parking and two were discharged; radio car answered 91 alarms and traveled 3,375 miles.

Anthony Russo, chairman of "I Am An American Day" Day dinner, extended invitations to the councilmen and the burgess to be guests.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

CAMP BRADFORD, Norfolk, Va., Apr. 11.—(Special to Courier)

Having successfully completed the required courses and demonstrated to his division officer his ability to assume greater responsibilities, Russell T. Harris, Jr., whose family resides at 249 Cleveland street, Bristol, Pa., was advanced to the rating of Yeoman Third Class. It was announced by Captain J. W. Whitfield, USN, Commanding Officer of this Amphibious Training Base.

Since his entry into the Naval Service on July 1, 1943, Russell T. Harris, Jr., has made steady progress. His present assignment in the Amphibious Force, the spearhead of our attacking forces, holds out to him still further promotions in the field he has chosen as his Naval career.

The specialized training which the Navy is giving him will be of invaluable service to him in the future.

At the present time, Camp Bradford is engaged in one of the most important training programs in her history. Men are being prepared here for crews aboard LST's, the largest of the amphibious craft capable of making a beach landing. The bows of these craft are swung open, ramps are lowered, and troops and materiel are unloaded on the beach ready for action.

FARMING FOR FUEL

Approximately 18 years ago, Dr. Ernest Berl, research professor at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, began to study how nature made coal and oil. He now reports his belief that he has solved this all-important problem.

His findings have occasioned an announcement—released by the American Chemical Society—of a process for making coal from farm, forest and sea plants, enough to supply the world's needs and more simply and cheaply than by any other known synthetic methods. The process is reported to telescope into a few years, with heat and pressure, what nature took millions of years to do in forming coal and oil.

A specially interesting aspect of the reported discovery is the prospect of supplying the nation with its peacetime requirement of gasoline for motor vehicles from small plantings of crop lands with cane sugar—without losing the sugar content. It also unfolds the possibility of making coal or gasoline from a variety of other vegetable products, including ordinary farm wastes such as sawdust, thus enabling the farmer of the future to make his own household and operating fuels.

As a contribution to the post-war world, Dr. Berl foresees his process filling the needs of the have-not nations for coal and oil, with the provision of enough land to grow the basic carbohydrates. He foresees a reclamation of tropical jungles into cultivated crop lands for the production of crude oils and coal.

Without going into the matter of costs in detail, Dr. Berl states that the oils from which gasoline would come would be made in cheap, simple apparatus, comparing favorably with the German method of making gasoline from coal.

It is a time in the world's history when continuing wonders are being untold by scientific appreciation of the miracle of nature. The possibility of eventually supplying the world with sufficient fuel by a streamlined processing of many vegetable growths is overwhelming in its implications. It appears in keeping with the revolutionary strides in the field of medicine, such as the discovery of penicillin and the various sulfa drugs; to say nothing of almost limitless developments in the field of plastics.

Indications are that science has only begun to tap nature's reservoirs of products waiting to contribute their share to the material improvement of living. Because of the depletions of war, attention will particularly focus on the possibility of restoring the world's fuel supplies in new scientific recourse to nature. Thus Dr. Berl's reported findings in this field carry vast significance.

When the calendar announced spring, spring wasn't far behind.

Great songs appear only at widely spaced intervals. Weeks have passed since a modern Bee-thoven came through with a song about the eating habits of livestock.

HULMEVILLE

A donation of $50 was voted by the Ladies Auxiliary of William Penn Fire Co. to the Salvation Army when 22 members met in the fire station last evening. The organization also received an acknowledgment from the Red Cross for a recent donation made to that cause. Miss Margaret Perry was the presiding officer. Members plan to present a gift valued at $1 to each person in service from families of William Penn Co. or Auxiliary members. The money will be given to the families who will be asked to either forward the money or purchase gifts valued at that amount. Named as hostesses for the May meeting are Mrs. Charles Smith and Miss Margaret Perry. Games were arranged and prizes awarded following the meeting. Mrs. George Spill and Mrs. George Wheeler being in charge. Refreshments were also enjoyed.

Following an operation performed at Abington Hospital, Mrs. Francis Buckley returned to her Bellevue avenue home on Saturday.

YARDLEY

"Jerry" Saxton, of Washington Crossing, of the U. S. Navy, is now on leave after some time in the Pacific area.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Arnel spent Easter with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Beldan, Lansdale.

Mrs. Watson Cadwallader and son Charles, have returned home after visiting Mrs. Cadwallader's husband, who is stationed at Fort McClellan, Ala.

NEWTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Sonamaker announce the birth of a son, David Myton, in Germantown Hospital, on March 18th.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER ONE

Syria Verne was white with rage. Where did that fussy photographer get the idea he could tell her off in front of other people? And threaten her! She'd show him.

The doorman of the Maison Restaurant raised his eyebrows as she swished out and hailed a passing cab. He blew his whistle belatedly, but she paid no attention. Her temples throbbed. She never should have made the engagement in the first place. She gave the driver the address of her apartment.

"Over my dead body—or yours!" Pierre had a nerve grabbing her arm and saying things like that! The last month ought to have shown him it was all over. Just because she was kind enough to give him a date, he didn't have to pull that possessive stuff!

Sure he'd taken some swell pictures of her. Sure he'd got her face plastered on the back of every magazine through that cigarette contract. But that was last year. Did he think she had to go on being grateful forever?

The cab pulled up to her apartment building. She paid the driver and walked in.

The elevator boy said: "Good evening, Miss Verne. Nice night out, isn't it?" She was too preoccupied to answer. Why did people have to utter such banalities, she wondered fleetingly. She made an effort to forget the evening's incident.

She had enough to worry about without being threatened by a mere photographer. A girl had a career to think about. What did Pierre have to do with getting the penthouse? Nothing! Would he have been thoughtful enough to send her to Europe? Never! Had he ever given her furs or diamonds? Would he ever have given her a present of a check for five thousand dollars? Could he have gotten her a contract in the movies? It was ridiculous! Where did Pierre get off acting as though he owned her just because he took her out to dinner? Oh, he was still in love with her, no doubt—but that was old stuff!

The elevator seemed to crawl upward. A kaleidoscopic rush of thoughts raced through her mind. What a coincidence to run into Argus Steele this evening! Good old Argus! Maybe he could help her untangle the tizzy mess. Why hadn't he kept harping on Martinielli though? She bit her lip and sighed. There was a pretty kettle of fish! Martinielli and Carstairs and Flagg and Sturgis. Pierre Sturgis could go jump in the lake, after tonight!

The elevator door opened. She could hear the phone ringing inside. "Good night, Miss Verne," said the elevator boy.

"Good night," she said, hurriedly searching her bag for the key.

"Brrr—brrr—brrr—" rang the phone. Where the deuce was that key? She fished around amongst compact, lipstick, hairpins, handkerchiefs and loose change.

"Brrr—brrr—brrr—" rang the phone.

Suddenly she remembered the Leave Word Service. Why hadn't they answered the phone? What was she paying them for? Then she glanced hastily at her wrist watch and understood. It was just after midnight.

"Brrr—brrr—brrr—" rang the phone.

She finally found the key, inserted it in the lock, opened the door and switched on the light.

"Brrr—brrr—brrr—" rang the phone.

That would be Carstairs, she thought. He'd promised to call her at twelve. She half ran across the living room and reached for the telephone. If it was Pierre, she'd hang up! She lifted the phone from the cradle. "Hello, . . ."

There was a sharp detonation. She felt the hot stab of a bullet in her chest. She tried to scream. Then everything went black. She sank to the floor. The receiver fell out of her hand and lay beside her still form.

Syria Verne no longer had a career to think about. . . . The evening before, Argus Steele was sipping a scotch and soda at the bar of the Penguin Club and waiting for Ellen Curtis to return from the ladies' room when he noticed a neat pair of ankles beneath the red velvet rope at the entrance way. This rope, theoretically in-

The girl looked up, startled, as the broad-shouldered, brown-eyed young man smiled down at her. "Argus!" she exclaimed, holding out her arm on a level with her shoulder, palm downward. "Argus Steele! You old roue!"

"I didn't recognize you when you first came in, Lucy," he said. "The form was familiar, but I couldn't quite place the face. Here, this calls for a drink!" The waiter approached and bowed attentively. "Scotch with plain water for ma'm'selle. Soda for me. How's that for a memory, Lucy?"

"Marvelous, darling—but for your information the name is now Syria—Syria Verne." She smiled and looked up at him through mascaraed lashes. He was still stand-tended to prevent overcrowding when the tables and bar stools were all occupied, actually served as a subtle social barrier to undesirable would-be patrons. Maitre Henri would apologize unctuously to drunks and obviously debauched females and be unabashedly deferential to those who were neither. From behind the velvet rope only a few bar tables could be seen, and the moment they were vacated Henri was careful to replace a conspicuous card bearing the legend: "Reserved."

So Argus Steele's interest heightened as the velvet rope was un-snapped. Henri bowed courteously and the unattached female with the neat ankles was ushered to one of the little tables adjacent to the bar. Then his eyes travelled upward past narrow hips to a short, silver fox jacket. Finally they came to rest on the girl's face. Argus' brow contracted. She wore a smart, rakish, black hat. She was slender, sleek and dark-haired. The dark hair was what threw him. He stared at her for a few seconds, and finally it came to him. With a little gasp of surprise he said under his breath: "Well, I'll be—!"

Drink in hand, Steele sauntered over to her table.

"Hello, Lucy!" he said. "How's business?"

"Sit down," she said. Argus slipped into the seat next to hers and helped her off with her silver fox jacket. He noticed the label inside and he could not escape observing that her contours were just as voluptuous as ever, as she turned from one side to the other to slip her arms out of the sleeves.

She had a characteristic way of inhaling and simultaneously throwing her shoulders back as she got in and out of her wraps, which emphasized her full figure. In the old days Argus had told her this gesture would be even more effective if she could only resist the temptation of glancing about to harvest continuing proving stares of masculine observers.

"No more Lucy Callahan?" he asked.

"No. Those days are buried. When a girl has a career to think about she must have a glamorous name."

"So you've become a career diplomat," said Argus. "I always did think you'd make a good Mata Hari. You're much better suited for it than that tough sinning routine in the old speakeasy days." She grimaced at the mention of Martinielli's name.

Easter Season Wedding Is Solemnized at Cornwells

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 11.—An Easter wedding was solemnized in All Saints' Episcopal Church, Torressdale, on Saturday at three o'clock, when Miss Laura Marian White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William White, of King avenue, became the bride of PFC Harold R. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robinson, of Andalusia. The Rev. Percy J. Brown, rector of the church, officiated.

The bride, who approached the altar on the arm of her father, looked lovely in a fitted period gown of white tulle featuring a net yoke, full skirt and long train. She wore a finger-tip veil held in place by a tangle of orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet was of calla lilies, and she wore a string of pearls, a gift from the groom.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Harry Baker, of Philadelphia, and the Misses Eleanor and Charlotte White, sisters of the bride, served as bridesmaids. Their gowns were jasmine yellow silk jersey and head-piece of each was fashioned of yellow tulle and violets. The matron of honor carried an old-fashioned bouquet of violets and yellow daisies, while the bridesmaids carried arm bouquets of daffodils and purple iris.

Mr. William B. White, brother of the bride, acted as best man. The ushers were Mr. John Schick, of Washington, D. C., cousin of the

Pastor

Bristol Presbyterian Church

Our Father, Who art in Heaven, we look unto Thee as the Eternal One, the One in Whom all fullness dwells. We rejoice in Thy power and strength and in Thy power to save. We rejoice in the fact that we can commend to Thy care and keeping those whom we love. Though they may be separated from us by time and space, and beyond the reach of our personal ministrations, they are not apart from Thee. Thy hand will lead them and Thy power sustain them. Grant unto them a realization of Thy presence which will give them peace. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

groom, and Mr. Richard Gade, of Bristol.

The mother of the bride wore a grey afternoon dress, and a corsage of pink rose buds and purple sweet peas. Her small flowered hat carried the color tones. The groom's mother wore a light blue dress, navy blue hat, and her corsage was of pink rose buds.

Miss Rhema Leary, of Croydon, rendered two vocal selections, "Because" and "I Love You Truly." Mr. James Bryan, organist, favored with appropriate music including "Ave Maria" and "O Promise Me."

After a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the groom will return to Camp Lee, Va., where he is stationed, and Mrs. Robinson will reside at the home of her parents. The bride's travelling suit was light blue shepherd's check, and with it she wore navy blue accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Pvt. and Mrs. Robinson are both graduates of Bensalem high school and before his induction into the army the groom was employed by Rohm & Haas Co., Bristol. The bride is a secretary in the personnel department of Hunter Manufacturing Corp., Croydon.

Pamela Blake had been borrowed for the leading feminine role. At two o'clock on a Thursday morning, a few hours before production was scheduled to start, Pamela was rushed to the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Hollywood, suffering from what was at first thought to be appendicitis but was later diagnosed as acute intestinal "flu."

RITZ THEATRE

Monogram has measured out a carefully apportioned amount of human interest action and comedy, put them all together, and come up with a new film. It's the picture "Smart Guy," which opened at the Ritz Theatre last night.

To take care of these varied situations as they arise in the story, Producer John T. Coyle made an intelligent, showmanlike choice in his cast by appointing Rick Vallin, Veda Ann Borg, Wanda McKay and Jack LaRue to the principal roles.

HUNTER QUILTS SUBURBAN NINE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

League Seeks Fourth Team
To Join Up for The Season

PAUL C. VOLTZ IS HEAD

May Seek Team From Burlington To Round-Out the League Group

The Bristol Suburban Baseball League is seeking a fourth team to enter the circuit. At a meeting held in St. Ann's A. A. clubhouse three teams signified their intention of beginning the 1944 season. The Hunter nine withdrew from the team.

The teams ready to start the season are: Diamond, Rohm and Haas, and Voltz-Texaco. If the fourth team cannot be organized among the teams in this vicinity, it is the intention of the league officials to attempt to secure a team from Burlington.

Paul C. Voltz, president, presided and the representatives were: Diamond, Joe Diamanti and Michael DeRisi; Voltz-Texaco, George Dougherty; Rohm and Haas, J. J. Gonzales. Thomas Juno is secretary of the league and Henry Morgan, treasurer.

ment of the affair was made by Mrs. Howell Johnson.

Four new members were announced at the meeting: Mrs. Joseph Ryan, Mrs. Harper Stockham, Mrs. John Andrews and Mrs. Morris Foulke, Jr.

The club will sponsor a day at the Masonic Service Centre in Trenton on May 6th, with Mrs. John Wittekind in charge. Mrs. Coleman Morgan and her program committee will be in charge at the Y. M. C. A. USO on April 26. Members of this committee include Mrs. H. Victor Hausman, Mrs. Harold J. Leadbeater, Mrs. Robert Saviers, Mrs. Martin Hibbs and Mrs. Russell Willoughby.

Mrs. Richard Landis, president of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs, and a member of the Morrisville club, gave a report on the county federation meeting, which will be held at the Forest Grove Presbyterian Church on April 28th. Mrs. John Ulrich and Mrs. Frank Lorimer were named as delegates to the annual spring meeting.

Included on the program of the April meeting were speeches by Mrs. E. L. Martin, president of the Bristol Travel Club; Mrs. W. Lowry, president of the Newtown Century Club, and Mrs. Watts.

Warns of Chaotic Conditions Which Will Follow If New Deal Policies Are Continued

destroyed personal initiative and undermined the pillars of all enterprise. It has taught American youth that government owes them a living; powers and rights of the states are being confiscated by Federal government; the three coordinate branches of government guaranteed by our Constitution have been rendered ineffective by Presidential seizure of unparalleled authority; the freedom of the press and radio is being challenged by the Chief Executive; the great fortunes which furnished the capital to build our industrial empire are being systematically attacked and dissipated by a multiplicity of taxes and all that is basically American is endangered by a political dynasty that is impervious to logic and indifferent to laws.

"Unless we are prepared to deliver our futures into the hands of zealous crackpots who dispense the fire and brimstone of New Deal politics with evangelistic fervor, we must see to it that private enterprise does not become a sacrificial lamb in the temple of their phony paternalism."

"Free competitive enterprise is not a concoction of capitalists bent on plundering the nation, but it is a method devised by human beings to care for their exchange of labor and the building of their lives and future through an economy of their own making. It is the best system we or any other nation have devised to produce and distribute wealth to all."

"Private enterprise should be free for the development of all the initiative and incentive that can be coaxed out of every individual, whatever his station in life."

"The greatest contribution that Government can make toward the steady increase in the American standard of living, aside from war production, sound money, proper tariffs and fair courts, will be made if Government avoids competition in industry and confines itself to the strictest protection of the equality and corporate ventures into new fields."

"The American worker is a conservative at heart. He doesn't want the source of his employment tampered with, if he knows it. Yet today, the New Deal is slyly and systematically projecting its power and influence to gain complete domination of all industry, all enterprise and all initiative. We see this in the limitations being cunningly imposed on free enterprise by rattle-pated theorists who seek to make over our economic system without admitting that it's being socialized."

"If free enterprise is to be saved in this country it will be because it is understood and protected by 130,000,000 Americans who want it preserved for their own security and the security of the nation."

"This war is being fought to free us from the kind of government that tells people not only what to do, but what to think and what to believe. In the transition from a war to peacetime basis, America will need all the new ideas, original thinking, initiative, research and acceptance of responsibility that it can muster. The reconstruction era must be managed to provide permanent jobs for millions of soldiers and war workers. Private enterprise can and will do its part provided it is not plagued by the mental and spiritual corruptions of a destructive bureaucracy."

"Our industries cannot prosper half free and half shackled. We grant that government controls are necessary in time of war. Every American wants to see this war won and won quickly. No sacrifice is too great to that end. But when victory is finally ours, we don't want an America where every detail of our private lives is run by government brass hats. A man has to have a little room to move around in if he's going to do his part to build a better world. He can't do much when he's all tied up with regulations, red tape, restrictions and trick taxes that rob him of all chance to live his own life and plan his own adventures."

"That is the formula for national dictatorship. That is what ten million American boys are fighting to prevent!"

At the meeting, attended by 500, there were a number of honored guests, including two candidates for the offices of delegates to the Republican National Convention, namely former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, of Bristol, and Mrs. Hannah M. Durham, of Allentown. Mr. Grundy reminisced of the 44 years he has been attending national conventions, the first time he had that honor accorded him being in 1900 when McKinley was nominated for the second time. At that time, Mr. Grundy stated, the late Senator Quay was in action, the Bucks Countyman considering Senator Quay as without equal as a convention delegate. Other conventions attended by Mr. Grundy were the Theodore Roosevelt convention. "That is apparently where the Roosevelt trouble started," he smilingly commented. He was also a delegate to the Harding convention in 1920; Coolidge in 1924; Hoover in 1928; and Landon in 1936. Stating that he had been "right" five times out of six, Mr. Grundy said he believed that qualified him to represent Bucks-Lehigh Districts at the coming convention.

Mrs. Durham, who was introduced by Mr. Grundy, paid him high tribute, saying she felt that with the "odds" five to one, "and with Mr. Grundy as my partner at the convention we should win." Mrs. Durham has been in attendance at five conventions as alternate delegate-at-large. "We don't want these starchy-eyed philosophers in Washington when the reconstruction gets underway," she added. She stated that it is not just a question of putting another man in Washington for four years, but the question of selecting a leader who will be able to return this country to normal conditions.

Another speaker was Senator Morris Tallman, of Allentown, chairman Lehigh County Republican Committee. Senator Tallman presented the state political picture. "Since the Republican administration of Pennsylvania took over we have produced something worthwhile in the way of better living," he said, then outlining briefly a few things such as change of laws regulating business, better deal to farmers, reduction of taxes on business, and tax relief on small business. He also said that "Pennsylvania has a better soldier vote law than any state in the union. . . . What has been done in Pennsylvania under the Republican administration has been sound, and should be a pointer to what can be done under Republican rule after the next national election."

Others introduced were: Mrs. Clarence J. Buckman, co-chairman of Republican County Committee, and also candidate for alternate delegate to the national convention; the Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; the Hon. Wilson L. Yeakel, Perkasie; the latter two being candidates for re-election to the state legislature.

Harris Holmes, Doylestown, presided.

Mr. John Paglione, Bristol, Pa.

Dear Mr. Paglione:

This is to advise you that the Exchange Club of Bristol indorses your program for "I Am An American Day," Sunday, May 21. President Abraham Bustrian and Dr. George Fox will represent the Club at that time. Kindly make reservations for them.

Very truly yours,
CLARENCE S. MOYER, Secretary.

bearing works at Schweinfurt was the roughest deal for me," he said. "I got a probable that day. An FW 190 came in at 5 o'clock to about 300 yards and I let loose. He was in the middle of our formation and

I could see the pieces fly. Our top turret gunner finished him off," he related. "We were greatly outnumbered by fighters. That was the time they started using rockets and belly tanks. Flak was plenty heavy too. But we sure made quick work of a lot of German fighters that day," he added.

"When we struck at Bremen installations the flak was the heaviest I've ever seen," he put in. "Just about the center of the flak area a burst came up and blew a hole the size of a football about a foot from where I was standing."

"I don't see how Germany can stand up under these blows," Sgt. Wigginton conjectured, "and they've got much more to come. What impresses me most is the number of bombers and fighters we get into the air at one time and how we keep it up day after day. The most outstanding thing I've noticed is the growth and development of fighter escort for us. It's perfect now. It's going deeper and deeper and getting better and better. I think the Mustangs (P-51s) are the best fighters in the world, from what I've seen."

Sgt. Wigginton is now instructing new gunners in radio operating procedure. "It sure is quiet on the ground," he said.

be followed by the business meeting, when new officers will be elected.

The young men's newly-organized high school chorus will entertain with several numbers and then will come the speakers of the evening, who will be Leonard Miller, chief of occupational information and guidance of the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction.

After Mr. Miller's talk there will be an open forum and following this the meeting will close with singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Mrs. Ralph Schenk reminded those present of the clothing crusade to be held by the school children this month and asked again that parents be on hand to wrap the articles the afternoon of the 19th.

It was voted that the P. T. A. give scout leader pins and also be responsible for the necessary funds to send the leaders to camp each year.

It was decided that the books for the organization should be audited by George Shelly and Miss Lillian V. Kelley and closed immediately following the May executive meeting.
